June 10, 2014

- Recognized for contributions to the development of CommVault's channel partner strategy and program and commitment to the mutual success of its partner community
- Named to the Power 100 list, which honors channel executives for exceptional expertise and vision
- Helped drive CommVault's newly enhanced PartnerAdvantage program with new tools to help partners drive revenue and expand into new markets

OCEANPORT, N.J., June 10, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- CommVault (NASDAQ: CVLT) today announced that Gemma Noakes, senior director of worldwide channel and OEM marketing, has been named to the CRN 2014 Women of the Channel list, and has been recognized as one of this year's Power 100. The annual Women of the Channel list highlights the accomplishments of female executives within vendor, distribution and solution provider organizations, and the impact they have on the advancement of the IT reseller industry. This year, the Power 100 spotlights those female executives at vendor and distributor organizations whose insight and influence in their respective companies help drive channel success.

For the past five years, Gemma Noakes has played a major role in CommVault's success as a channel-driven company. With a strong focus on enabling, engaging and exciting CommVault's partners, Gemma and her team have strategically developed tools and initiatives. Most recently, Noakes helped develop demand generation tools and communications to support enhancements to CommVault's PartnerAdvantage program, which included a series of enhancements designed to help channel partners accelerate revenue growth and simplify collaboration as they expand into new markets, such as data protection, archiving, mobility and cloud services.

"It's an honor to be recognized by CRN for this award, especially to be included in the Power 100," said Gemma Noakes, CommVault. "I'm proud to be a part of CommVault's robust channel organization that delivers the right strategy, products and tools to equip our partners with everything necessary to win in the marketplace. I look forward to continuing to serve as a role model for women in the channel around the globe."

Supporting Quotes

"With leaders like Gemma Noakes spearheading our channel marketing initiatives with our partners, we are confident we will we will earn our partner's loyalty and help them to differentiate themselves and CommVault within their chosen markets," said Ralph Nimergood, vice president of worldwide partners and programs for CommVault. "This coupled with our enhanced PartnerAdvantage program, is allowing us to help partners empower data-driven organizations to better protect, manage, access and share data across their enterprise with a single software platform for strategic data and information management."

"It is our privilege to acknowledge the exceptional achievements of the women in this year's Power 100," said Robert Faletta, CEO, The Channel Company. "We are committed to raising the visibility of the contributions of women in the channel, and we applaud the far-reaching influence of these executives who are defining today's channel and helping to shape its future."

A special feature of the Women of the Channel is in the June issue of CRN Magazine and expanded coverage of the Power 100 will be featured online at www.crn.com.
